Approved Substitutes for EDPS 630 for Curriculum and Instruction

General:
The following policy was approved by the Graduate Committee on 3/25/05 and on 4/8/05 by the C&I faculty:
In an effort to provide options for specialized study to meet individual students advanced research needs, we propose eliminating EDPS 630 as a research requirement for Curriculum and Instruction students. Instead, individual graduate program areas can select other research design courses to fulfill the research competencies. EDPS 630 will remain an option. Possible courses include, but are not limited to: EDCI 620, EDCI 673, EDPS 630, ANTH 605. The Graduate Committee must approve the list of possible courses.

Science Ed:
Plans to design a course similar to EDCI 673 as a substitute, but also will allow EDPS 630

EWAC:
Career & Technical Ed: EDCI 647

Ed Tech:
No substitutes

L&L:
EDCI 620, Seminar in Mathematics Education
EDCI 673, Issues and Methods in Educational Technology Research
ANTH 605, Seminar in Ethnographic Analysis
ENGL 618, Research Design
ENGL 624, Rhetorical History and Theory
ENGL 625, Empirical Research on Writing
ENGL 632, Critical Theory
ENGL 680, Qualitative Research Methods
STAT 514, Design of Experiments

Math Ed:
EDCI 620C

Social Studies:
No substitutes

Curriculum Studies:
AMST 601, Introduction to American Studies
AMST 602, Contemporary Issues in American Studies
ANTH 605/LING 689, Seminar in Ethnographic Analysis
COM 632E, Media Effects
EDCI 567, Action Research in Science Education
EDCI 618, Gender and Culture in Science Education
EDCI 684, Seminar in Curriculum Studies
PHIL 510, Phenomenology
PHIL 555, Critical Theory
PHIL 610, Seminar in Recent Continental Philosophy
POL 632, Research Seminar in Peace and World Order Studies
POL 693A, Qualitative Methods
SOC 609M, Advanced Discourse Methods
WOST 680, Feminist Theory and Methodology